McGAUGHEY

The Prison Commission.
There never was a greater mistake in Kentucky than when the Legislature took the appointment of the Prison Commissioners from the Governor. It was done for the purpose of preventing the Republican party from controlling the patronage connected with the management of our penal institutions. It would have been far better to have let the Republicans control the patronage than to have had the Prison Commissioners control the Legislature, which they have done since the law was changed. The Prison Commissioners have not violated any law in doing this. In truth, they have done nothing more than most men in their position would have done. We have never yet known men who had power over the acts of a legislative body that have not exercised that power. The present Prison Commissioners, so far as the management of our penitentiaries is concerned, have probably done it as well as if they had been appointed by the Governor instead of being elected by the Legislature. The Democratic platform did not condemn in its platform the Prison Commissioners; it merely condemned the method of their election. As long as the Legislature names the Prison Commissioners—the men who hold these positions will seek to have their friends elected to the Legislature and will use all the methods of modern politics to that end, including the promise of positions and other things which they control. This is not the bad part of the present law, but the evil effects that grow out of it. When they have helped to elect a majority of the Legislature they are in a position to influence the Legislature to pass or defeat measures that have nothing whatever to do with the management or control of the penal institutions. Their very power and influence secured by efforts put forward in the election of the Legislature, makes lobbyists of them, not corrupt lobbyists, but lobbyists just the same; who, by their personal influence, can secure the defeat or the passage of any law which meets their favor or disapproval. It has been exercised a number of times in a way the people did not approve. It has come to pass that it is the Prison Commissioners making and defeating laws.

It has given to them greater power over the law making body than the Governor, for he can only recommend and vote, while the Prison Commissioners can command. The people of the State, regardless of politics, do not want this influence over legislation vested in the hands of the Prison Commissioners. It must be taken away from them so that the Legislature may be free to do all times the will of those they represent.

The news has no personal feeling against the present Prison Commissioners.
As far as we know they have given the State a good record in the management of the penitentiaries, and we repeat in exercising their influence upon the Legislature they have only done what most other men would have done, but we think the manner of their selection is absolutely wrong and hurtful, calculated to increase the abuse rather than correct wrongs in the State, having an influence upon the Legislature never contemplated in our form of government. The Democratic party is pledged to change their manner of selection and a Democratic Legislature must carry out this behest of the party to merit the approval of the people.—

Indiscrete Hunters.

It is unfortunate for the Nimrods who find great sport in search of the game little bird of the stubble, the Bob White, that there are so many indiscrete hunters who seem to have so little respect for the farmer whose lands they invade. A true sportsman and an experienced bird hunter will not injure stock or molest those things which are prized by the farmer and his wife, and which are theirs by the "sweat of their brows." Since the opening of the game season many reports have reached the city that hunters have been guilty of shooting turkeys and other stock, and taking possession of articles not belonging to them. Such acts as these are not committed by real sportsmen but by irresponsible people who take advantage of the opportunity to confiscate property belonging to others. The only recourse left to the farmer is to have warrants issued for those guilty of such acts and see to it that they are punished as prescribed by law.

ONE of the first and most important sets of the next House will be selected a speaker, whose duty will be to name the various committees and preside during the sessions of the Legislature. The speaker, if so inclined can virtually control the legislature, since it is in his power to place on committees such men as are known to favor or disapprove legislation that is to come before that body. Taking the past as a criterion it will be well for the members of the next House to select a man for this important position who is not dominated by any clique or clan, and who is free from all entanglements who is not a candidate for speaker in order to promote the interest of the Prison Commission or any other set of office seekers. A man is needed who will discharge the duties involved without favor, who will see to it that all bills presented are given the proper consideration and not tucked away in the pockets of committees there to remain until adjournment, as has been too often the case in former years. Gentlemen of the legislature, think well before casting your vote for speaker and select a man who is in perfect accord with the platform adopted by the Democratic party. The eyes of Kentucky are upon you, and will hold you responsible if not true to your trust.

Small Fire.

An alarm of fire was turned in Monday night from Gus Christman's residence near Cemetery, known as the Lotcher place. The fire was discovered between the walls of the building and considerable difficulty was experienced in getting the flame extinguished. The greatest damage however, to Mr. Christman resulted from water.

Baptist Bazaar.

The Baptist Bazaar, Masonic Temple, Saturday, Dec. 9th, Luncheon at noon.

82-Pound Pumpkin.

Mr. C. W. Cobb, of Red House, entered at the State Bank and Trust Co., several ears of corn and a pumpkin weighing eighty-two pounds, raised on his farm in Clay county, Arkansas. Mr. Cobb says he had a larger pumpkin than this but loaned it to one of his neighbors to be used as a corn crib. He thinks Arkansas the greatest state in the South.

Residence Burned.

The residence of Mrs. Thomas Park, near Whitlock, was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning. The building was occupied by Dan McQuinn, who lost most of his household goods. The fire was discovered in the kitchen roof but had gained such headway that the flame could not be extinguished, and the building was soon reduced to ashes.

County Court.

December County court brought to town about the usual size crowd, but business at the Madison Stock Yards was unusually slow. About 2,000 cattle were on the market, and those sold brought from $6 to $2 per pound.

The Market.

The market, however, was better than on November court day. Demand was fairly good and prices satisfactory. Horses were slow, and very few sales reported.

Baptist Bazaar.

The Baptist Bazaar will be held at Masonic Temple on next Saturday, Dec. Doors will open to the public at 10 a.m. There will be different tables of beautiful articles for Christmas, one of household articles, one of embroidered fancy things, cooked and uncoked edibles.

The Doll and Candy Tables will be of interest and beauty. At noon a lunch of oyster soup, crackers, celery, chicken salad, ham, beans, biscuits and gravy will be served.

Death of Judge Black.

Judge W. R. Black, of Barboursville, one of the best known jurists in Eastern Kentucky, died Thursday morning at St. Joseph's hospital, Louisville, following an operation. His condition was thought to be greatly improved, but on the morning of his death a turn came for the worse, and this popular man succumbed. Deceased was appointed Circuit Judge of the Thirty-fourth judicial district by Governor Wilson, being the Circuit Judge of the new district. His term expired two weeks ago, when Judge F. D. Sampson, who was recently elected, received his commission as Governor. Judge Black was a son of Samuel Black, of this city, and is survived by his wife, father, four brothers and two sisters. His brothers are: G. E. B. P. J. D. and T. C. Black, of this city, and his sisters, who reside in this city, are Misses Belle and Nettie Black. Judge Black had rented law offices and a residence in this city, and was preparing to come here on January 1, 1912, to reside. The remains were brought to this city Thursday night, and laid to rest Friday morning in the Richmond cemetery.

Commercial Club.

A dozen or more enthusiastic members of the Commercial Club met Monday evening. It was a called meeting and upon invitation of Messrs. Douglas & Simmons and Mr. Wm. Broadus, the meeting was held in the office of the latter, in the Douglas & Simmons building on Second street. The President, Mr. R. R. Burnam, being too ill to be present, sent his regrets. Mr. C. F. Higgins was asked to preside. Secretary Allen Zaring was at his post.

Upon the meeting being called to order, Mr. C. E. Douglas, on behalf of Douglas & Simmons and Mr. W. S. Broadus, tendered to the club, for their use free of charge during the ensuing year, the large double room in their building occupied by Mr. Broadus as office. Mr. C. E. Douglas also offered the club ample desk room. The offer was accepted with a vote of thanks.

At this meeting the ball was set in motion, which, a little later on, will be of inestimable benefit to our people. The ball will be given later, as the master-decease. Upon completion, it will be given to me Monday evening, Dec. 11 at 7:30 p.m. at which time the question of election of officers for the ensuing year will be taken up. Every member of the club is invited to attend. This connection let us say that many of our business men and citizens have a strong desire to join the club and is extremely popular with all denominations.

Mr. J. W. Zaring and Mr. Allen Zaring have been invited to speak for several days at a formal party at some on Lexington avenue. Any one who goes to the meeting will be greatly pleased.

Interesting Reading Assured. Miss Georgia Ray MacMillan, who will give a reading at E. K. S. N. Chapel next Monday evening, Dec. 11 at 8 p.m. under the auspices of W. M. S. of Presbyterian church and Y. W. C. A. of E. K. S. N., will be remembered by many as having lived here and like them who have lived in Richmond can't stay away. Among the stories she rarely gives reading a place the same of Richmond. She goes from New York City for the winter and returns to her audience

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Items of Interest Regarding Home, Town and Ourselves.

Messrs. Wm. S. and Thos. J. Moberly took Thanksgiving dinner with their sister, Mrs. J. H. Toy, of Mayfield.

The following news taken from the Richmond (Va.) Virginian, of November 23, will be read with intense interest by hosts of friends here: "Mr. and Mrs. John Hart announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Katherine, to Thomas Douglas Cleaum, of Madison county, Ky. The marriage will take place in January. Miss Hart is a charming young girl and possesses a lovely voice that has won many admirers. She sang at the concert she gave at the Woman's Club last spring. Her wedding will be a prominent event of the mid-winter. Miss Hart was a guest last July of Mrs. McCombs, of Frankfort, and it is to be known to her who is to make this city her home. Mr. Chonault is a member of one of Madison's foremost families and his approaching marriage calls forth the hearty good wishes of hosts of friends from the old folk, too."

Two Noted Horses Burned To Death.

Governor Gray and County Tax, whose estimated values as runners, were $35,000 and $3,000 respectively, were burned to death Sunday shortly before noon in a barn on the farm of Captain James T. Williams, at Spring Station, Woodford county, the cause of the fire, which started in the hay loft, being unknown. There was $10,000 insurance on Governor Gray, $2,000 on County Tax, and $500 on the barn and feed in it.

Editor in Line for Job.

It is reported that Cecil Williams, editor of the Somerset Times, is to be given a berth by the incoming Democratic administration. It is stated that Mr. Williams will be given the position of assistant insurance commissioner, which pays a salary of $2,000 per annum.

Come and select your goods early. I have everything wanted for the old folk and the old folk, too.

Has His Place.

The marriage of W. E. Luxon, of this city, and Miss Nellie Gourley, on Saturday, Dec. 13, was celebrated Tuesday last at the bride's home, and came as a complete surprise to the friends of the contracting parties. The wedding was performed in the home, but in a quiet and simple ceremony. The ceremony was said by Rev. J. M. McLean, of the Methodist church, after which Mr. and Mrs. Luxon left for a honeymoon trip. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Luxon, of this city, and was born in 1887. His bride is well known in the community. This is his second marriage, his first wife having been Miss Henrietta Traynor, of this city. His bride is well known in Richmond, having frequently visited friends here. She is the beloved daughter of Judge and Mrs. G. W. Gourley, and is a most attractive young woman. This was the fourth marriage of Judge Gourley with a young woman. Mrs. Gourley is the widow of Judge Gourley with a young woman. Mrs. Gourley will reside at his home near town. The bride joins with hosts of friends in extending congratulations.

The marriage of Mr. James Neale and Miss Mary Trible was solemnized at the Christian church on Wednesday evening. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Trible, of Covington, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Trible, of Cincinnati, Ohio. The couple were married in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Oldham, of this city, and is attending Millersburg Military Institute, was with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Oldham, for the Thanksgiving holidays.

CHAPTER XV.

Accusation and Admission.

Now that the great moment had come—for Langford had at last recognized the woman whom he sought in spite of her strange garb—he became suddenly acutely conscious of trivial details and accurately perceived numbers of minor facts. He stepped forward near the bow of the boat, told the corsair whom he might allow the men to land but that they must remain close to the beach and within easy call and see that the boat was properly secured. Then he turned and walked slowly—singular how eager he had been for that moment and how tardy he was in availing himself of it when it came—toward the two who strolled idly watching a little distance away.

He was dressed in a boating suit of white and wore a white yachting cap. He was distinctly good looking. His repentence, his anxiety, his disappointment had refined his face to a certain degree and he was not unworthy specimen of humanity in appearance.

The man looked at him with interest, as though he had seen some cause of dismay to find the new comer so worthy of respect on the ocean of life at least.

"Katherine," said Langford—to his Justice he was not afraid—"what is this man to you?"

"I am nothing to her," answered the man.

"And yet," said Langford, hotly still addressing the woman.

"She loves me," he continued.

"She loves me," she answered the other, "and we were happy until you brought the world to our shores. Since then she has wept. Look at her now."

"My God," exclaimed Langford, "is it possible?"

"It is true," said the woman, finding voice at last, and looking steadily at the man.

Langford's emotion now passed all hours. He had trembled before; he shook now as if with the palsy. He reached out and caught the trunk of one of the trees to steady himself.

"What are you to this man, in God's name?" he cried.

"Nothing. Ever since I fled from the ship on that hateful night and lands on this island we have been friends, good friends. He was a castaway. He had forgotten his speech. He had lived here since he was a child. I taught him everything."

"To love you?" queried Langford in hot and bitter jealousy.

"That was one thing. I learned myself," answered the man. "And yesterday, you might call it chance, but I call it God's will, the man gravely, "discovered to us the love we bore steadily," is Valentine Arthur Langford."

"What did you do to her?" asked the man with the bluntest possible directness, "that she weeps at the thought of you; that she is filled with horror as you approach; that she looks at you as she does now? I have never seen that look upon her face since we have been upon this island."

Langford turned and faced the man as these singular queries were put to him.

"Who is this man, Katherine?" he asked, an angry flush in his face.

"I don't know for certain," the woman answered, "but I think his name is—"

"What has my name to do with it?" interrupted the man, impatiently.

"You are asking me questions," he said.

"When I know who you are and by what right you put them, I will decide," was Langford's contemptuous answer.

The woman had never seen her companion in a temper, but he was peculiarly near the breaking point now, and Langford, although he realized it, had never been and would never be more enraged than when he was about to strike.

A swift blow showed her the man's strength to the very outbreaking point.

The woman laid her hand upon his arm, a calming touch.

"In the world," she said, "people are presented to one another."

How she loathed Langford. She thought for a moment that she had to say the word and her island companion would tear him to pieces. She had, however, for a moment, succeeded in instilling into his mind the restraints of civilization. She began to see dimly that such an achievement was beyond the power of any single individual; that it had been in the past and would always be the future the result of the co-operation and restraint of the many. Yet she forced herself to speak evenly to the islander.

"Mr. Langford, I believe this man's name is to John Revell Charnock. I believe him to be an American, a Virginian. I found him here upon the island."

"This matters nothing," said the islander, "I don't care what this man's name is, or who he is. I want to know why he dresses you."

"I am not wondering what was the best time to take with this singular being, "pray let us withdraw under to the shade of the trees where we can be more private."

The men in the boat who had screamed out upon the sands had been eager spectators and auditors of every thing that had gone on. Their curiosity was greatly excited and their propinquity was evidently distasteful to Langford.

"You are refusing to answer my questions," said the man. "I will not be put off further."

"Man," said the woman, laying her hand upon his arm, "it is my wish."

"Oh, if you wish it."

He turned without a word and led the way rapidly across the beach out of earshot but not out of sight among the trees.

"Now," he said turning and facing the other two.

He noticed that the woman was gaily white and that Langford was scarcely less pale.

"Sir," said Langford firmly, "I desire to answer your question. I have business with this lady and with her alone. It does not concern you and I

"Mistress!" said the other.

"You will have it then?"

"She was my wife, but without the blessing of God or the law of man. I owned her, do you understand? I possessed her body and soul."

"Not now," said the woman, but the protest was lost.

"You fool!" cried the man, swiftly leaping upon him.

"The tiger ever sprang with such swiftness or such ferocity Langford."

The ISLAND OF REGENERATION

By CYRUS TOWNSEND
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WALTERS

Copyright 1909 by McChesney, Copyright in Great Britain

Had the woman come to her senses, he would better get it. We won't be within landing distance of that island you would better get it. He would better get it.

He had never heard the words that lovers use, and although he knew that her name was Katherine, he believed that his was John, and thought sometimes that she made use of these names generally, the old ones he had used by the broad generic terms which stood for sex. Names are only for differentiation and identification in any event, and here was no need for such appellation. She loved to call him "Man," and she loved to hear him call her "Woman."

"You know," he said, "that 'tis I who brought the world upon us."

"I was unjust, unkind," she answered quickly enough, stretching out her hand to him. "You must forgive me. You see even the approach of youth brings bitterness into our hearts into our speech."

"I guessed that it would be so when I saw you ween," said the man. "I wish now that I had not given you the flint and steel; that I had not allowed you to light the beacon."

"My friend, it had to be. Don't reproach yourself for that. Sooner or later this island would have been visited by some one. Sooner or later the ship would have come to fetch us off."

"But we were so happy here," he protested.

"Yes," she answered, "but not since yesterday."

"Are you unhappy because I love you?"

"Because," she made swift to reply. "I am no longer sure that you will love me always."

"But you love me, do you not?" he questioned, eagerly.

"Yes."

"Are you sure of yourself?"

"Absolutely."

"Why not of me, then? Am I less true? Do I love less than you?"

"Not now."

"What is the difference between us?"

"I have seen the world and you have not."

"But I tell you that will make no difference; that I would be more to break his fast, but in a short time he was on deck once more.

The island was perceptibly nearer. Capt. Harper was forward staring through the glass. Running along the waist Langford joined him on the forecastle.

"Can you make out anything?" said the young man, etching the old one by the arm.

"Aye," was the answer.

"Is she there?" he asked, hoarsely.

"Her heart in his mouth."

"There is a figure on the weather side of the fire tender."

"A figure?" asked Langford, trembling so he could scarcely control himself.

"It looks like a woman," he said.

"Your advice is good," said Langford, turning away and entering the cabin.

Never had man less appetite than he. Somehow, he could not tell why he felt certain that this would be his last attempt, would not prove fruitless; that his search hitherto unavailing would now be rewarded. He gazed with reverent admiration at the gray of the dawn which might bring him to the land he sought. He had carefully studied the chart the night before, saying nothing to anyone, for he had become somewhat sensitive about the matter.

He had married his wife in a moment of boyish infatuation. The union had been impossible almost from the first. She was little more than an attachment, however, which he had snatched him for his money. There had been a separation on a liberal financial basis, to which the woman had readily, even cheerfully, agreed, and he had no longer remained in those seas, for he had carefully studied the chart the night before, saying nothing to anyone, for he had become somewhat sensitive about the matter.

Dr. Coomer Loses Hand in Accident.

Refuses Requisition For Richmond Boy.

Gov. Willson thinks a forgery is not a forger unless it amounts to more than five dollars. Russell Whig, of Richmond, for whom he refused a requisition unless given a guarantee that it will cost the State nothing, is an ex-convict and has served a term for forgery. He escaped at least two forged checks in this city but neither one was necessary. Drs. Sandlin and Gibson were summoned and performed the operation. Dr. Coomer is one of the most popular physicians in the county and much sympathy is extended him in his unfortunate accident.

What Does Good Plumbing Mean?

Richmond Heating and Plumbing Company

LAXATIVE SENT FREE TO TRY

It may be taken for granted that there is no laxative that does not contain a泻药. If you don't know of a good laxative, or the laxative you are using is losing its effect, we want to call your attention to Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepin, which thousands of families are using successfully.

We have scores of letters from mothers and scores from prominent men saying they are using it personally, giving it to their families, the Traffic Clearing House, Pine Bluff, Ark., and Mr. George B. Turner, a lawyer of Harlan, Ky. The thousands of mothers who use the syrup would take too much space to mention.

The reason they prefer Syrup Pepin is that it is a mild, gentle laxative-tonic that does not grip—effective and yet so mild that babies can take it. It tones the system, relaxes, relaxes the body and strengthens the stomach and bowel muscles so that they again do their work naturally.

If you have been a victim of salts, soap and strong cathartics you will discard them when you once use Syrup Pepin.

You can buy a fifty cent or one dollar bottle of any druggist, but before doing so you may want to try it free. If so, send your address to Dr. Caldwell and he will promptly forward a free sample bottle. Then, being convinced, do as others are doing and buy it in the regular way of your favorite druggist.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 402 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Malthoid Roofing

You cannot get a good weather and waterproof roof for your building from a poor roofing.

The roof of your building is the most important part of it and unless your roofing is right, there will be no peace of mind for those who live under it.

A roof that leaks causes no end of trouble, beside a lot of damage.

The best way to protect yourself from these unnecessary troubles, is to use Malthoid Roofing.

The makers of Malthoid Roofing guarantee it to be a perfect roofing—to give satisfaction and to last as long as the building it covers, provided it is properly laid and ordinary care is taken of it.

Twenty-six years of experience enables The Paraffine Paint Co., of San Francisco and Chicago to guarantee Malthoid Roofing under these conditions.

To be absolutely sure that you have no roofing troubles, buy Malthoid and lay it properly.

For Your Hair

Here Are Facts We Want You To Prove At Our Risk.

When the roots of the hair are entirely dead and the pores of the scalp are glazed over, we do not believe that anything can restore hair growth.

But we believe there is nothing that will so surely promote hair growth as will Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. To prove this statement, we promise to promptly return all the money you pay us for Rexall "93" Hair Tonic, should it not please you.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic destroys the germs which are largely responsible for hair loss, stimulates the roots of the hair, stimulating and, by promoting circulation, nourishing them.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic helps to relieve scalp irritation, to remove dirt and oil from the hair, from falling out, and to promote an increased growth of hair. It comes in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain it only at our store—the Rexall Store. H. L. Perry's Drug Store.

May Sell Pooled Tobacco.

It is said that the officials of the Burley Tobacco Company are having a large number of heads of the 1909 pooled tobacco sampled, with a view of selling same at private sale. The tobacco being sampled is now stored in Cincinnati, Shelbyville and Lexington. All grades are included. The Executive Committee is not making their plans public, but it is thought that there is a deal on with the American Tobacco Company for the remainder of the 1909 crop, at a private sale.

Nothing New About "High Finances."

Frenzied finance is not exclusively a habit of recent years. At the Riggs National Bank in Washington, says the Popular Magazine, there is carefully guarded a proof of the foregoing assertion. Regarding the proof there is told this story:

"One winter morning Henry Clay, finding himself in need of money, went to the Riggs Bank and asked for the loan of $250 on his personal note. He was told that, while his credit was perfectly good, it was the inflexible rule of the bank to require an indorsement. The great statesman hunted up Daniel Webster and asked him to indorse the note. With pleasure," said Webster, "But I need some money myself. Why not make your note for $500 and you and I will split it?" This they did. And to-day the note is in the Riggs Bank—unpaid!"

Automobiles Painted.

At a critical juncture during the battle of Gettysburg, when the Confederates were pressing hard at a certain point, General Hancock rode up to a body of soldiers and inquired "What is the matter?" The answer was "The Rebels are coming." Hancock dashed into the gate of the 2nd Mass. Regt. and, with a roar of "Charge!" sent the 2nd Mass. Regt. into the battle. The 2nd Mass.
